

Redvine

Redvine has a vine growth habit and when allowed to climb, takes on a shrub appearance. At the present, southeast Missouri is its most northern range.

The leaves are alternate, leathery and have irregular lobes along the margins. The plant also has tendrils which assist in its climbing.

Life cycle: perennial.